

Republishing Terms & Conditions

We value our writers' work and stories. All our content is protected by copyright and prohibited from republishing unless permission is explicitly granted in writing by us.

'Republishing' refers to the duplication of our site images and content, including our writers' work and stories – in part or whole, on electronic and/or print platforms that do not belong to The Tapestry Project SG.

You are welcome to share our site images and content, provided:

1. You have obtained express, written consent from us.
2. You agree to visibly credit our writers, preferably in the by-line.
3. You agree to visibly credit us with "This article was originally published on The Tapestry Project Singapore" and provide a link back to our website in the attribution line.

Please note that:

1. No part of our writers' work is to be edited or adapted unless express, written permission has been provided.
2. You are not allowed to systematically republish all our stories.
3. You may not frame, share or sell our site images and content to third-parties without our written permission.
4. Each article is subject to a content licensing fee. This, however, will be evaluated on a case-by-case basis.
5. We reserve the right to revoke permission should the above terms be breached.
